Neighbourhoods

1. Downtown

Start here for Covent Garden Market, restaurants, the library and events. This is London's busy centre. If you stay out in the evening, check when the last bus home leaves before you go.

2. Richmond Row

The stretch of Richmond north of downtown is a go-to for restaurants, shops and an evening out. It can feel lively and noisy late at night.

3. Woodfield

Just east of the core: older houses, leafy streets and an easy walk toward Victoria Park. Come for a relaxed look at London's heritage streets.

4. Old North

Tree-lined streets and older homes between downtown and the university area. A pleasant place for a daytime walk and a look at established London.

5. Old South / Wortley Village

This is where you go for a village feeling inside the city: coffee, independent shops and a stroll along Wortley Road. An easy first neighbourhood outing.

6. Old East Village

Come for independent businesses, arts and performance spaces, and the Western Fair District nearby. Explore with a destination in mind; the feel changes from street to street.

7. SoHo

The name means "south of Horton". A neighbourhood close to downtown and the river, with older homes and redevelopment. Useful to recognize when people describe central London.

8. Blackfriars / Petersville

A small historic area across the river from downtown. Blackfriars Bridge and nearby river paths make a good starting point for a walk.

9. Western / Broughdale

University buildings, students and busy term-time streets. Visit for the campus and events; check parking and visitor access before going.

10. Masonville

When someone says Masonville, they often mean the north-end mall and surrounding shops and restaurants. Handy for a shopping trip; roads are busy.

11. Hyde Park

The northwest shopping-and-neighbourhood area around Hyde Park Road. Good for errands and restaurants; distances between stops can be longer than they look.

12. Oakridge

Established west-end streets, shopping along Oxford and access toward the river. Think everyday errands mixed with quiet residential pockets.

13. Byron

A west-end village feel, with Springbank Park nearby and Boler Mountain to the south. A favourite direction for a park outing or outdoor activity.

14. River Bend / West 5

Farther west: newer neighbourhoods, the West 5 area and nearby woodland walks. Choose an official trail entrance and check trail conditions.

15. Westmount

A southwest area Londoners associate with shopping and established residential streets. Handy for everyday services around Wonderland and Commissioners.

16. Lambeth

The southwest village that became part of London. Come for local shops and community places; allow more travel time from the city centre.

17. White Oaks

South-end shopping around White Oaks Mall and Wellington Road, with residential streets nearby. Useful for errands and meeting up over food.

18. Pond Mills / Westminster

Southeast neighbourhoods near ponds, natural areas and everyday services. Use marked public trails; wooded routes are better explored in daylight.

19. Argyle

A broad east-end area with shopping along Dundas and many residential streets. A practical place for errands; "Argyle" covers more than one small pocket.

20. Huron Heights / Fanshawe

Northeast London around Fanshawe College and surrounding neighbourhoods. Think campus activities, local services and parks; the conservation area is farther northeast.

P3 Harris Park

A big open park beside the river at the edge of downtown, used for outdoor concerts and festivals. A good place to join the riverside paths.

Where the two branches of the Thames meet, next to downtown. The Thames Valley Parkway, a long paved path along the river, passes through here.

A river park north of downtown with a playground, open lawns and paths along the water. Popular with families.

P13 Medway Valley Heritage Forest

Wooded valley trails along Medway Creek, near Western University. Trails can be steep and muddy; wear good shoes.

Woods and meadows along the Thames in the east end, reached by the historic Meadowlily Bridge.

Quiet forest trails in Byron, in the west end. Best in daylight; stay on marked trails.

Exploring with confidence

- Get to know a place in daylight first. After dark, choose well-lit, busier streets, check when your bus home leaves, and consider travelling together.
- Quiet river paths and wooded trails are best explored in daylight. If you feel uncomfortable, go into an open business or change your route.
- Poverty, homelessness or someone's appearance do not tell you whether they are dangerous. No guide can promise safety on every street.

Three easy first outings

- Wortley Village: coffee and a stroll along Wortley Road.
- Downtown: Covent Garden Market and the Central Library.
- Byron: a daytime walk in Springbank Park.

Before you go

Check opening hours, the weather, and your bus (LTC) there and back. Buses run less often in the evening. Neighbourhood names overlap and people use them differently.
